

For release September 17th, 2007

Jeff Graham announces he is entering the Aldermanic race.

Jeff Graham, 37, officially announced today that he is seeking a seat on Lethbridge City Council. His focus for the next three years will be on encouraging and empowering the citizens of Lethbridge to guide and grow our community.

Graham can see that there are good opportunities for partnerships within Lethbridge. “The City could work with the Lethbridge Exhibition, for example, to build a convention centre that would attract events. This kind of partnership would benefit everyone.”

The creation of a new performing arts centre is of interest to Graham. “I think we have underestimated the social and economic impact the arts can have on a community.”

Jeff Graham, who is a single parent and fourth generation Lethbridge resident, works at All-Tra Battery. He has made an agreement with his employer to make sure he has all the time he needs for Council duties, should he be elected.

“I think that the citizens should take advantage of their opportunities to participate,” says Graham. “Even if you’re not voting for me...get out and vote on October 15th!”

###

For interviews with Jeff Graham, please e-mail him at VoteJeff@Lethbridge.org or call him at 403-380-3584. His website is www.jeffgraham.ca